“If a picture wasn’t going very well, I’d put a puppy dog in it, always a mongrel, you know, never one of the full bred puppies.

And then I’d put a bandage on its foot... I liked it when I did it, but now I’m sick of it”

Norman Rockwell

Who Will Care When You're Not There ?, Estate Planning for Pet Owners

By Robert E. Kass and Elizabeth A. Carrie (local Detroit attorneys) available from Amazon.com or www.carobtreepress.com.

AMAZON.COM review:

Do you have any idea what will happen to your furbaby if you die first, or if you are totally disabled?

Whether you answered yes or no this book is for you. It's a comprehensive resource that you can refer to over and over again once you've gleaned the how to's packed inside. I must admit as a pet owner I have never thought about this topic the way it is present in this resource. But I cannot afford not to, because now as a result of reading this I know better. Both author's are Estate planning and administration attorneys who share an affinity in helping their clients develop plans for the care and welfare of their furbabies. It covers ALL animals' not just cats, dogs but horses, birds and snakes as well.

This resource not only covers how to care for your furbaby but also displays pet quotes and beautiful illustrations of animals representing the chapter they are showcased in. What's interesting is the chapter about "legal framework" illustrates sleeping furbabies (smile). But this guide is written in layman terms and not legal vernacular, so you won't fall asleep or get bogged down with legal mumbo jumbo
